Aims & Scope

Current Drug Safety publishes frontier articles on all the latest advances in drug safety. The journal aims to publish the highest quality research articles, full-length/mini-reviews, and case reports in the field. Topics covered include adverse effects of individual drugs and drug classes, management of adverse effects, pharmacovigilance and pharmacoepidemiology of new and existing drugs, and post-marketing surveillance. It also includes articles focused on resources for the identification of harmful substances and cellular, biochemical, and molecular mechanisms that are responsible for the side effects of drugs. The journal is essential reading for all researchers and clinicians involved in
